

Minto Disability Footwear

When working in a person's home, it's important to wear footwear that is both safe and respectful of the homeowner's property.

Here are some tips for choosing the best footwear with safety in mind:

Slip-resistant soles: Look for shoes with non-slip soles to reduce the risk of slips and falls, especially on tiled or polished floors.

Closed-toe shoes: Closed-toe shoes protect your feet from potential hazards like dropped objects or sharp debris.

Comfortable fit: Comfortable shoes reduce the risk of fatigue and injuries caused by poor posture or foot pain.

Respect for the Homeowner's Property:

Clean shoes: Wipe your shoes clean before entering the home to avoid tracking in dirt or debris.

Non-marking soles: Non-marking soles help prevent damage to the homeowner's floors. Consider the flooring: If the home has hardwood floors or other delicate surfaces, you may want to wear shoes with softer soles or even bring a pair of indoor slippers to change into.

Refer to the Images:

- Closed-toe shoes with slip-resistant soles images: This could be a pair of sneakers, work boots, or even some safety shoes. The focus should be on the closed-toe design and the non-slip sole.